The Department of Africana & Latino Studies presents

The 4th Annual Ralph R. Watkins

Africana Studies Lecture Series

at SUNY College at Oneonta

This semester in Craven Lounge, Morris Hall:

Thursday, March 29th @ 7:30 p.m.

Kwadwo Opoku-Agyemang: This Migrant Memory

Kwadwo Opoku-Agyemang, Professor of Literature in the Department of English, University of Cape Coast, Ghana (Ph.D., English, University of Toronto) has taught language and literature in universities in Africa, Europe, North America and Asia. One of his specialties is African oral literatures. He is a Fellow of the Korea Foundation, and was twice a Fulbright Scholar in Residence. He has been a regular visiting teacher to the Africana and Latino Studies Department, SUNY-Oneonta, since 2004. Recently, Fall 2011, he was a visiting professor in literature at the Brooks College of Interdisciplinary Studies, Grand Valley State University. Before that he was Distinguished Visiting Scholar to the Black Studies Department, Portland State University. He has recently completed work on Highlife and Kind Hearts, the final installment in his Cape Coast Castle.

Sponsored by an Inclusion Diversity Equity Action (IDEA) Grant with generous support from the CME and Departments of Africana & Latino Studies and Philosophy

More Info Contact: Chris Keegan – Africana & Latino Studies and Philosophy Departments, x2811